All Golfers Should Be Committed....

There's a couple of ways to take that title. I'll let you decide for yourself and your golfing friends. Today we're going to talk about commitment to your shots, both in practice and on the course.

I notice when golfers warm up or practice, there's a lot of wide eyed mystery going on. I suspect most golfers train on the range with NO IDEA what will happen from shot to shot. Then when a shot goes bad, they begin fixing and changing things to make sure the next one does something different. That tends to compound things and chaos follows. The same is true on the course. Most of us go to the course and hope, then react to whatever shot happens.

THERE IS A BETTER WAY!

We all have tendencies with our ball flight and or a shot we think we have the best chance of hitting. I suggest going to the range and committing to hitting that shot. See the shot you want. Rehearse that shot with a practice swing, or a smaller move of the club or arms that allows you to hit that shot... Then step up and swing with confidence! If it doesn't do what you want... Repeat the process! Practice with a clear shot in mind and how you will make it. Practice with confidence and clarity. You won't hit all your shots well, but your good shots will come more often, and your confidence will soar!

Now take it to the course. Pick the best shot for your game. If you have doubts, choose another shot! Once you are committed, see the shot, feel the shot, and then let it rip. With a clear picture and a committed attitude, I think you'll enjoy your good shots more, and play better golf!

Now GO PLAY GOLF! Stop THINKING golf swing!!!
